ACTIVITIES FOR GOVERNMENT OF ARGENTINA (No. 11, page 3)

October 24-November 15, 1979

1. The New York office prepared and distributed six press releases.
2. The monthly economic newsletter was edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Embassy in Washington.
3. B-M gathered background information for and researched the feasibility of proposed Argentine oil seminars in the United States, including consultations with oil industry executives.
4. The first issue of the Argentine oil newsletter was designed, edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Energy Secretariat.
5. At the request of an international management publication, B-M arranged for official and private interviews in Argentina for its visiting editors. Subsequently, arrangements were cancelled when travel difficulties arose.
6. A slide presentation previously used by Undersecretary for Foreign Investments Federico Dumas was reproduced and shipped to Europe for his use there.
7. Many information requests from the media were received, and B-M complied, providing further data on hydroelectric construction, petrochemicals and the oil industry, transportation, airplanes and the food technology conference held in Buenos Aires.

November 16-December 15, 1979

1. The New York office prepared and distributed 18 press releases.
2. The monthly economic newsletter was edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Embassy in Washington.
3. Leading oil industry trades in New York were contacted to set up interviews with Argentine Energy Secretary Daniel Brunella during his visit. Clips resulting from the interviews plus a brief report were submitted to the client.
4. Finished researching the proposed Argentine oil seminars in the United States; reported the feasibility and recommendations to the client, suggesting they take place in late spring. Some oil industry executives were contacted, and a preliminary list of oil company invitees drawn up.

5. B-M continued to work with the Argentine Trade Office in New York, to counsel on introductory strategies and to exchange information.
6. Continuing in its support of the business community, B-M answered questions from an investment company regarding the Argentine oil industry, and from an electric company interested in establishing an Argentine sales office regarding investment promotion laws.

December 16, 1979-January 15, 1980

1. The New York office prepared and distributed 15 press releases.
2. The monthly economic newsletter was edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Embassy in Washington.
3. In an effort to ascertain correct information for an oil story, B-M contacted two oil companies in the United States. The story was dropped when it was discovered there was insufficient news to release it.
4. At the request of Miss Universe pageant officials, B-M queried Argentine officials about the possibility of staging the contest in Argentina. There was no interest in the proposal.
5. B-M continued to serve as an informational source for the media, providing data on ports and the oil industry to several special publications. In addition, many calls regarding the Argentine stance on the grain embargo were referred to the embassy in Washington.
6. The account supervisor traveled to Argentina to review progress and to discuss future plans with the client.

January 16-February 15, 1980

1. The New York office prepared and distributed seven press releases.
2. The monthly economic newsletter was edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Embassy in Washington.
3. The second issue of the Argentine oil newsletter was edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Energy Secretariat.
4. B-M contacted the major media in New York to set up interviews for the visit of Undersecretary for Foreign Investments Federico Dumas. B-M accompanied Mr. Dumas at the interviews.

5. A brochure describing a major land sale for the Argentine state railroad was designed and produced for approval.
6. At the request of Argentine banker Julio Werthein, B-M consulted American Express regarding publicity for its loan to Mr. Werthein's bank. B-M arranged for an interview with a banking publication and also attended a cocktail party for Mr. Werthein. American Express took charge of all other publicity.
7. B-M contacted the Export-Import Bank to inquire who would represent the entity on a proposed trip to Argentina, and the probable dates of the same. The data was forwarded to Argentina.
8. Work continued with the Argentine Trade Office in New York, as B-M counseled about office introductory strategy, recommended appropriate courses, conducted information inquiries and exchanged information about Argentine products and trade partners. A request for information about shopping center sites in Argentina from a U.S. company also was forwarded to the trade office.
9. At the request of various media, B-M provided additional data about construction, ports, commodities, mining and the grain embargo position.

February 16-March 15, 1980

1. The New York office prepared and distributed 15 press releases.
2. The monthly economic newsletter was edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Embassy in Washington.
3. B-M met with Energy Secretariat Advisor José Antonio Estéves to plan the oil seminars in Houston and Denver. A proposal outlining format, types of presentation, equipment involved and agenda was submitted to the secretariat for approval. In addition, reprints from the February issue of WORLD OIL were ordered in preparation for the seminars.
4. After obtaining approval from the Argentine state railroad, B-M finished and printed the brochure describing the land sale in Buenos Aires. Preliminary work began to design and produce appropriate logo paper for a cover letter as well.
5. At the request of Córdoba Province, B-M obtained and forwarded an estimate about the cost of a filming crew in Miami to film events at the Miami Trade Fair. Subsequently, the project was dropped.

6. Working with the Argentine Trade Office, B-M counseled regarding methods to reach businessmen, researched speaking platforms, prepared introductory letters and discussed message tours to different states. In addition, B-M authored an article which the trade office placed in a specialized trade publication.
7. Trade press publications were contacted to ascertain interest level and possible attendance at the Miami Trade Fair on behalf of the Argentine Trade Secretariat, which was coordinating Argentine efforts at the event. Based upon the survey, B-M submitted a project proposal to the client.
8. Continuing its service to the business community, B-M obtained supermarket information for a U.S. food processing company and provided oil industry data for an investment firm.

March 16-April 23, 1980

1. The New York office prepared and distributed 10 press releases.
2. The monthly economic newsletter was edited, produced and printed for the Argentine Embassy in Washington.
3. Media interviews, one for background purposes only, were set up for Juan María Ocampo, president of the Banco de la Nación Argentina, who was in New York for the bank's inauguration of new quarters. All other publicity was done by the bank.
4. B-M finished its work on the logo paper for the Argentine state railroad, and printed the cover letter to accompany the land sale brochure. Both were shipped to Argentine embassies worldwide and to Argentina.
5. When the Energy Secretariat approved plans for the oil seminars in Houston and Denver, B-M took charge of making all logistical arrangements for hotel meeting sites, contacted oil company executives by phone to invite them to attend, scheduled meetings and produced appropriate charts to illustrate the Argentines' verbal presentations. B-M also created and produced a short audio-visual on the country's oil industry, which the Argentines presented at the seminars with U.S. companies. B-M accompanied the Argentine delegation to Houston and Denver, finalizing and carrying through on logistical arrangements and confirming times and dates with the oil companies. Follow-up to date has been taken care of by the Energy Secretariat from Argentina. B-M prepared an evaluation of the seminars, plus follow-up suggestions and recommendations, which were submitted to the client.

Local and trade press in Houston and Denver were invited to interview delegate members; two trade publications did so. In addition, B-M answered information requests from oil companies that subsequently called, in many cases referring the requests to the Energy Secretariat.

6. B-M continued to work with the Argentine Trade office, to counsel the trade officers in Chicago and New York regarding the program each wanted to carry out. In addition, a speech was revised and recreated for the trade office in New York.
7. Serving as an information source, B-M provided additional data on foreign investments in Argentina and its hydroelectric projects at the request of various publications.
8. B-M traveled to Miami to coordinate publicity for the Argentine delegation exhibiting products at the Miami Trade Fair. Interviews with various media were arranged for the Argentines, and releases were distributed to press representatives in Miami. The releases were also distributed to a mass mailing list from New York.
9. The account supervisor traveled to Argentina to review progress and to discuss future plans with the client.
